NEW SCHOOLS PLANNED BY ADVENTISTS

Pacific Union Conference of Adventists Consider
Up to Date Plant

WILL COST $200,000

Strengthening of Parochial School System Is Now Planned

The Pacific Union conference of the Seventh-Day Adventists, in connection with certain members of the general conference committee, have been in session in Glendale for a number of days. The principal subjects considered were the strengthening of their parochial school work in southern California, and the building of an up-to-date sanitarium in Glendale. The two conferences took steps to each erect a twelve grade school in its territory. The exact location of these schools has not yet been decided upon, but committees have been appointed to look up locations and secure plans and specifications for the buildings to be erected. Monday, March 27, the constituents of both the Southern and Southeastern conferences are to meet in Glendale to make final arrangements for the building of these schools. These new enterprises will cost in the neighborhood of $200,000. Full high school work will be done and more or less normal training.

These schools are to be a part of a string of such educational institutions throughout the United States. It is estimated that each school will purchase about forty acres of garden and fruit land, and good dormitories and school buildings will be erected to take care of from two hundred to three hundred students who will attend these schools. It is hoped the buildings will be erected and furnished and all be in readiness for the schools to open the coming autumn.

C. OF C. RALLIES MEMBERSHIP TO FORUM TONIGHT

Dr. von KleinSmid Will Speak as Result of 3
Months' Effort

A man who is termed as one of the biggest men on the Pacific coast is coming to Glendale tonight and will address members of the chamber of commerce at their Forum dinner. The man is Dr. R. B. von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California and head of the Southwest League.

Secretary Rhodes and Assistant Secretary E. F. Sanders have been trying for three months to secure the services of this man as a speaker at one of the Forum meetings. Secretary Rhodes said this morning: "I hope that the members of the chamber will realize the importance of Dr. von KleinSmid on the Pacific coast and will do him honor by turning out strong to hear him. It would be a shame for a man of such importance to be forced to speak to empty chairs." The dinner will be at 6:30 p. m. and Dr. von KleinSmid will speak at 7:45 p. m. Mr. Rhodes is through the daily papers inviting all graduates of the University of Southern California, of which Dr. von KleinSmid is the head and of the University of Arizona, of which he was formerly the president, to attend the meeting at 7:45 p. m. and hear him.

Music will be furnished by members of the Madrigal club. According to Mr. Sanders the program as prepared by this organization is well worth the hearing to say nothing of the talk of Dr. von KleinSmid.

MOVIE TRAGEDY QUEENS

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—On the heels of the unheralded departure yesterday of Mary Miles Minter, who sailed from San Francisco for the Orient, came an announcement at the Mack Sennett studios here today that Mabel Normand would leave for a vacation in Europe immediately upon completion of her present picture, "Suzanna."

Miss Minter and Miss Normand were friends of the late William Desmond Taylor and the shock of his death is said to have affected the health of both. Miss Normand will not return from the continent until late fall, it was said.

LLOYD GEORGE IS DELEGATE

LONDON, March 16.—Great Britain's delegates to the Geneva conference will include Lloyd George and Lord Curzon, foreign minister, Austen Chamberlain announced in the house of commons this afternoon.

Henry James Returns to Editorial Duties With Renewed Vigor

Henry James returns to the editorial page this evening after an absence of a week or so during which period he was a victim of influenza. He tells something about this in his comments on the day's news, tells of loss of appetite, stupor and misery and says that there are some people so constituted as to deny the prevalence of influenza.

James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight shows how refreshing it is for a man to receive a letter from a friend who addresses as "Dear Old Man." He says that it results in a softening of the spirit and brings renewed energy and courage.

There are editorials on matters of present-day interest and the usual features by Della Stewart and John Pilgrim. Henry James' "Observed at a Glance" column is resumed and Dr. Frank Crane speaks of unknown famous men. There is poetry, scientific facts, east-point of view and other interesting matters on the editorial page for your consideration.

AGED FATHER OF PROF. HERTZOG PASSES AWAY

Representative of Pioneer
Family of Pennsylvania
Dies at Old Home

Prof. Walter S. Hertzog of 613 North Maryland avenue, instructor in history in Hollywood high school for the past ten years, received the sad news Wednesday of the death of his father, Theodore B. Hertzog who lived at Shamokin, Pa., and was 71 years old at the time of his death.

Mr. Hertzog's family was one of the pioneer families of the Keystone state and had the distinction of contributing its sons to every war in which the United States participated. The emigrant founder of the family in this country was Philip Hertzog, who was born in Heidelberg, Germany and settled in Pennsylvania in 1738. He passed safely through the terrible Indian massacres in that state during the colonial period, and served along with Daniel Boone, in Col. Bouquet's expedition, in the French and Indian war. When the revolutionary war broke out in 1775, Philip Hertzog served as an officer for six years in the Pennsylvania Continental line. His three sons, Philip, Jr., Paul and Theodore, served in the same regiment with their father.

Theodore Hertzog, the great grandfather of Theodore Hertzog, had a son, Peter Hertzog, who was captain of one of Pennsylvania's military companies in the war of 1812. He was stationed at Fort McHenry, Baltimore, Md., where Francis Scott Key wrote our national anthem, the "Star Spangled Banner." Many members of the same family were soldiers in the Civil war.

The deceased, Theodore Hertzog, leaves the following sons: William F. Hertzog, merchant, who served in the 21st U. S. infantry in the Spanish-American war; Harry Wallace Hertzog, merchant, who served in France with the famous 79th division (Lorraine Cross) and was severely wounded in the Battle of the Argonne; Donald Scott Hertzog, banker, who served as an officer in the field artillery, U. S. A., and was stationed at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky., during the recent war; Howard Sinton Hertzog, electrical engineer, (Columbia), who was in the electric engineering division at Hog Island Navy yard; Prof. Walter S. Hertzog of Hollywood high school.

Theodore B. Hertzog was one of the substantial business men of Central Pennsylvania. He was a pioneer in the anthracite coal industry in that state, manufacturer and retired business man and an officer and director of numerous corporations and banks.

COMBINED COAL STRIKE APPEARS

Prospects Strong of Anthracite and Bituminous Workers Uniting

NEW YORK, March 16.—Strong prospects of anthracite miners joining bituminous workers in a walkout on April 1 today drew Secretary of Labor Davis to New York, where anthracite miners and operators are in wage conference.

Both operators and miners expected Davis to urge that the anthracite mines be kept in operation.

Davis has been advised by labor department mediators that the government's best hope of getting bituminous operators to agree to confer with miners lies in bringing about quick agreement in the anthracite field.

OWN YOUR HOME DRIVE STARTS HERE

Realty Board Organizes
for Campaign in
This City

COMMITTEE CHOSEN

State-wide Movement to Unite People to the City Endorsed

The Glendale Realty board held its regular business meeting in the chamber of commerce quarters last evening, there being present some 20 real estate dealers representing 15 active members.

Just previous to the opening of the general meeting, the governing committee accepted as new members: Paul Coggins, Jessie A. Russell company, Peter Hanson and E. L. Schuler, and the names of Wm. McMillan and the Eliza-Jane Realty company were reported on file to be acted upon at the next meeting.

The most important matter of business which came before the board related to the state-wide campaign, initiated by the state real estate association, and known as "Own Your Home campaign." This is unquestionably one of the biggest propositions which has come before the Glendale Realty board in its short life of two years, and although the job is a big one, the campaign is going to be put on as thoroughly as any where in the state.

To carry on the work, the following committees were appointed: R. D. King, chairman, L. A. Hart and W. A. Horn, to secure the cooperation of the churches in this movement, and have "Own Your Home" sermons preached in all the churches on Sunday, March 19, the opening day of the campaign; Mrs. M. L. "Light" was made chairman of a committee to enlist the support of the women's clubs and principally the Tuesday Afternoon club; L. H. Wilson, as chairman of a committee to line up the business firms, and A. M. Yale was instructed to get in touch with the principals of the schools to have the idea carried to the homes through the children—in the schools, securing if possible appropriate competitions, such as essays on the benefits and desirability of owning one's home; Dr. Jessie A. Russell was appointed chairman of a committee to procure speakers and make arrangements to have them advance the theory before the theatres every night in four-minute talks. To further carry on the campaign, the publicity committee was empowered to procure posters to be distributed all over town and to take such other action as may be necessary to properly advertise the movement and keep it before the public. ## SCHOOL SURVEY ORGANIZED BY COMMITTEE

D. D. Widdows Elected
Chairman at Meeting
Last Night

The school survey committee appointed by the chamber of commerce and composed of S. S. Gilhuly, W. E. Hewitt, J. R. Gray, Dr. W. C. Mabry, Mrs. Ella W. Richerson, L. T. Rowley, Dr. Jessie Russell, Dr. C. W. Young and D. W. Widdows, met Wednesday evening at the chamber of commerce for organization. Mr. Widdows was elected chairman and Dr. Jessie Russell, secretary.

The committee was called to order by Secretary Rhodes who outlined in a general way the work expected of the committee, which has been called upon to make a physical survey of the elementary and high school systems of the city and means by which they can be co-ordinated to their mutual advantage.

There was general talk in which all participated concerning the schools and their problems, and the committee adjourned to meet again Monday night at 7:30 at the chamber of commerce when the heads of the two school systems will be present and give definite data concerning the immediate and prospective increase in attendance.

The appointment of sub-committees was postponed until this meeting, and every member was requested to bring suggestions relative to the number of committees it would be advisable to appoint, the activities they should cover, and committee work in general.

Glendale Must Have Best In High School Building

By JOHN H. GERRIE

Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

Glendale faces an ACID TEST. It is a test of vision, of preparedness, of ambition, of wisdom. It is a test of inherent greatness. Big things are expected of Glendale and it is unthinkable that she will pass this acid test with anything less than flying colors.

A far-reaching problem at some time looms large before every fast growing community. It is looming large before Glendale TODAY. And it must be met and settled not for today, but for tomorrow and next year and the YEARS TO COME.

It is the high school problem.

Nothing is more important. Nothing can be more important. The FUTURE DEPENDS UPON IT. The manner in which it is handled will give the measure of Glendale of the present and set a standard for Glendale of the future. It may largely determine the place of this marvelous city among the conspicuous communities of California in the YEARS TO COME.

The situation is acute but fortunately there's a broad way out. Principal Moyses of the Union high school has before him a sum in arithmetic that can't be done. How to put 1375 enrolled students into an auditorium seating only 500 is beyond a problem. It is almost a tragedy. And the ENROLLMENT GROWS every term while the size of the school building and its auditorium remains the same.

But a new high school is to be erected upon the recently acquired Union school site at Broadway and Verdugo road. The land, twenty-one acres of it, was purchased out of a high school bond issue of $85,000. Now a new bond issue is necessary to place upon the Broadway site a group of high school buildings that will meet all requirements of Glendale and district for many YEARS TO COME.

Therein is the acid test. Will the citizens of Glendale realize that they are building NOW for the FUTURE, for a Greater Glendale and a far more populous high school district and authorize a group of buildings that will meet all requirements of that future and do honor to Glendale and district? Or will they, in a spirit of misplaced economy favor building for present requirements only, with a certainty that in a few years the congested conditions now existing WILL BE REPEATED?

The INITIAL TEST will come on Tuesday evening, March 21, when a mass meeting of citizens will be asked to sponsor the calling of a special election to vote upon a high school bond issue of $600,000. To those who have not studied the situation this amount may seem large, but when the purpose is considered it ACTUALLY IS SMALL. Fresno is spending something in excess of $1,000,000 on a new high school plant; other cities have expended more.

As a matter of fact $600,000 will not cover the ULTIMATE COST of all the buildings in the group that the Glendale district ought to have and MUST HAVE. But it will be sufficient for all the units required now or within the next few years. It will build a permanent auditorium and complete units of construction that cannot easily be enlarged; leaving others to be added as required.

Proposed plans include a central administration building and auditorium seating 2700 to 3000 students, with other necessary structures of the system in a half-surrounding group. Spanish architecture is favored by the trustees with the buildings of the group linked by covered arcades. The proposed bond issue will make the group complete in appearance and sufficient for present needs but allowing for extensions when and where required.

It is calculated that after the bond issue be authorized it will be another ninety days before funds will be available and it is hoped to have the new plant ready for occupancy in the fall of 1923. By that time, it is estimated, the enrollment of pupils will be close to 2000. But before the opening of the new school it may be necessary to operate the old school in half-day sessions to accommodate all students, present and prospective.

The bond issue to be asked does not exhaust the high school bonding credit of the union district under the last assessment and it is figured that the approaching assessment WILL ADD MUCH MORE to the bonding limit available for high school purposes.

The modern tendency in high school districting is toward CONSOLIDATION, and CONCENTRATION, and any suggestion of creating two high schools in the Glendale region, now or in the future, would be contrary to the best accepted opinion and proven practice.

Glendale DESERVES THE BEST in high schools and anything less than the best will be out of pace with the marvelously progressive record of this city and district. The bond election ought to be sponsored BY ACCLAMATION and the bonds be voted by an overwhelming majority. GIVE GLENDALÉ THE BEST.

the City

John H. Gerrie

At a special meeting of the city council last night at the city hall Colonel John D. Fraser was appointed chief of police by unanimous vote of the council. Captain William A. Loving, who has been in charge of the department since the resignation of former Chief Allen O. Martin was voted a written testimonial of appreciation for his work as head of the department during the emergency. He was also presented with a check for his services.

In appointing Col. Fraser as head of the police department the members of the city council expressed their opinion that they were placing a man at the head of the department who will be able to handle the business of the department in an efficient manner. They also intimated that all business pertaining to the police department will in future be turned over to the chief of police for adjustment and not to the city council. This was not stated but from the attitude of the councilmen it is believed that this will be their attitude.

After the appointment of the new chief the city council passed a resolution of thanks to Captain Loving for his excellent work as

MUSIC, DANCE AND CARDS ON SHRINE PROGRAM

Glendale's Leading Vocalists Open Program of Glendale's Jolly Set

The card party and dance given Wednesday night by the Shrine Club of Glendale in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium was the best and most jolly affair they have ever arranged. There was not a slow minute during entire evening, and everyone remarked that it was the best party they had ever attended.

A most appreciative audience enjoyed the musical program which was given the early part of the evening. This entertainment comprised the best local talent and their efforts were greatly appreciated.

The opening numbers on the program were given by Miss Clara Sayre who sang "The Hand of You" by Carrie Jacobs Bond and "The Message of the Blue Bird" by Howard. These numbers were beautiful. Miss Sayre was accompanied by Mrs. G. W. Peters.

Miss Alma M. Geiger then rendered several piano selections, displaying her wonderful talent. They were "Tarentella No. 3" from "Venecia e Napoli" by S. Liszt; "Sextette from Lucia" by Letchetizke. These two numbers were given by request. She also played "Badinage" by Victor Herbert.

Mrs. Virginia Freeman then appeared on the program and sang two lovely numbers, "The Nightingale" by Ward Stevens and "The Spring." Miss Geiger accompanied Mrs. Freeman for "The Nightingale" and Miss Sayre for "The Spring."

The Hawaiian singer, Keamoku A. Louis, sang "I Love Thee" by Edward Green and "Mother O' Mine" by Rudyard Kipling. He was accompanied on the piano by Miss Geiger.

These numbers were followed by an oriental and Spanish dance given by Miss Marthalo Webb and were very good.

After this pleasing entertainment dancing and cards were enjoyed and refreshing punch and wafers served. During the dancing J. R. Thompson called an old-time Paul Jones in which everyone got acquainted.

The Glendale Shrine Club has been invited to attend the banquet and ball at the Hotel Maryland next Wednesday evening, March 22, at 7 o'clock. The invitation was extended from the Pasadena club. The officers and men in charge of this pleasant evening were C. E. Neale, president, who presided over the program; Julius Kranz, vice-president; F. E. Gartley, secretary; Robert McKenzie, chairman of entertainment and his assistant Ed Waxman; H. C. Vandewater, chairman of refreshments, assisted by A. L. Baird.

Music for dancing was furnished by Kelly's orchestra. Mr. Kelly is a member of the club and is leader of the orchestra who furnished splendid music. They opened the evening with two selections.

Swiss Music Box Becomes Burglar Alarm

PORTLAND, Ore., March 16.—A Swiss music box, made in the form of a jewel casket, recently saved the home of F. F. Pittcock from being burglarized.

The burglar entered the room of Miss Fredrika Pittcock, and stealthily approached the bureau, where he caught sight of the "jewel" box—as the Swiss maker had intended he should. Cautiously he lifted up the top of the box.

Immediately throughout the Pittcock home the jingle rang out loud and clear—"Rufus Rastus Johnson Brown, What ye gwine to do when the rent comes round? What ye gwine to say? Nevah get a bit of sense till judgement day."

You know, I know, rent means dough. Landlord's gwine to turn us out in the snow; Rufus Rastus Johnson Brown. What ye gwine to do when the rent comes round?"

The burglar was paralyzed. He could not move for several seconds. Incidentally, each member of the family thought some other member had come in and turned on the music. Finally Miss Fredrika caught sight of the burglar, and promptly ducked under the covers. The burglar went out into the hallway, and Miss Virginia caught a glimpse of him through her door as he beat a hasty retreat.

EASTERN RELIEFS DISTINCTIONS ARE SHOWN

Rev. Mottern Points to Relations of Hoover
and Near East

To clear up any confusion that may exist in the minds of Glendaleans in regard to the relation between the Hoover relief and the Near East relief, an article has been submitted by Rev. R. W. Mottern, district director of Near East relief, who states that Hoover relief, whether in Germany, Austria, Poland or the Volga and Kuban famine districts in soviet Russia, is by no means the Near East relief, nor can it be.

"Near East relief and Hoover Russian relief are from 500 to 1000 miles apart. Near East relief has no connection whatsoever with the soviet government of Russia."

"Near East relief confines its operations entirely to the Asia Minor countries of Palestine, Syria, Turkey, Mesopotamia, Assyria, Armenia, Georgia and Azerbaijan, the three latter countries making up the Trans-Caucasian district of extreme southern Russia."

Besides its regular orphanage work, Near East relief has found it necessary to care for tens of thousands of children whose parents fled last year from the central Russia famine district down over the Caucasus range into Tiflis, Erivan and Alexandropol.

The refusal of Christian peoples of this great region to deny their faith and turn pagan has resulted in the loss of their property, homes, country and life itself.

"Near East relief has a clearly defined program. It is backed by congress and the sympathy and financial support of the Christian people of the United States and Canada."

RAILROAD SHOP WORK INQUIRY

Labor Board Takes Up
Complaint of Outside Contractors

CHICAGO, March 16.—The United States railroad labor board today hit at the attempt of some roads to escape jurisdiction of the board by letting out shop work on contract.

The board on its own initiative reopened the case of the Erie railroad, accused by the men with illegally letting contracts for shop labor in order to escape decisions of the board.

ARBuckle, JURY FORMING

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16.—There were prospects of completing the jury by tonight for Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's third manslaughter trial when court reconvened today. The attorneys had reported the stage of exercising peremptory challenges and the state already had passed its turn to challenge once, indicating that general satisfaction was being approached.

CHILDREN BURNED ALIVE

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., March 16.—Two children were burned to death, two were seriously injured and the parents were badly burned when the home of Berent Reichert, near here, was destroyed by fire today. Irene, 10, and Vincent, 7, were burned to death.

$50,000 CLUBHOUSE FOR K. OF C.

Glendale Council Plans for Growth of Organization

125 MEMBERS NOW

Organized Less Than 4
Years, Local Body
Grows Rapidly

A $50,000 clubhouse for the Knights of Columbus of Glendale was approved unanimously at a meeting last night of the Glendale council.

A clubhouse committee was appointed to put the plans through to completion.

The development of the K. of C. council in Glendale has been one of the surprising features of the social and civic development of the city. It was organized here in 1918, hardly four years ago.

It had already outgrown its headquarters. The construction of its own clubhouse is the only solution to its housing problem.

The selection of a site was left open at the meeting last night. The clubhouse committee was instructed to handle the entire proposition. On the committee are some of the leading business men of the city as well as leaders of Catholic thought in Glendale.

Peter L. Ferry, pioneer of the council in Glendale, heads the new committee.

The proposition came up at the regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus, held last night in their hall at Broadway and Orange. It was voted on and carried unanimously.

In this connection the following members were appointed the clubhouse committee: Peter L. Ferry, chairman; A. R. Townsend, T. J. Keleher, M. J. Brennan, H. M. Doll, H. V. Henry, L. F. Wright, F. H. Huesman, J. Monahan, F. Dunn, Leo McMahon.

Knights of Columbus council, No. 1920, was organized September 29, 1918, and the first grand knight was Peter L. Ferry. The membership is now 125.

Nothing definite was outlined as to a site. This matter is now in the hands of the clubhouse committee, who will handle all details in connection with the proposed new building.

C. Hayhurst, were drilled before Colonel Cusack and Major Heinicke, of the Third battalion. The officers were well pleased with the drill.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

MONKEY TRICKS AND MONKEY TROUBLE

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Mr. Muskrat wagged his head approvingly. He thought the red dog's story of the Ark was a very good one. Especially the part about the raven. Any beast in the woods will listen to gossip about him or his cousin, the crow, and the worse it is the surer they are to believe it. "Just the kind of tricks he'd be up to," said the old paddle-paw. "But didn't Ham's boy get even with him?"

"He sure did," Pat grinned. "But not right then. His Uncle Shem said he wasn't to be trusted, so he set the dogs to watching him—beside all the other things they had to do. Shep tended the beasts and Spot had the birds to keep his eye on. And they minded Shem's baby. Oh, that man certainly laid out plenty of work for them. If they'd had hands—? I suspect that's why we've never wanted to have them. There are some things no man can make us do because we haven't them."

"I've heard that monkeys have hands," suggested the doctor.

"Monkeys! Gruff! Two pairs, but no sense to use them. They won't do anything, but they're mighty good at undoing. Like the time one climbed up the mast and undid the rope so the sail came swishing down on the deck. It was flogging and wriggling. The monkey got untangled from it first, but something was right afaloft and gone off to sleep wrapped around the boom, where nobody'd dream of looking for it. Then the ructions began. All monkeys are scared of snakes, and this snake felt so cross over the way it had been waked up the monkey had a right to be afraid of it.

"So was Shem. He rushed into his cabin and slammed the door. Ham and Japhet were asleep and Mister Noah wouldn't pay any attention. He just rapped on the rail and called for quiet because he was busy over some adding that wouldn't come out right. The dogs weren't exactly scared, but a snake is neither bird nor beast, so it wasn't their work."

"And what did happen?"

"Oh, Ham's wife shut the monkey in her kitchen and gave the snake some milk from her little spotted heifer. That's how she managed folks—she fed 'em. A grand woman! Any time you'd sniff at her door she'd have a tasty bit to curl your tongue around. Not that Shem's wouldn't give you what she had, but Ham knew some tricks about providing things to eat that Shem never seemed to learn. He was always out looking for hard times—"

"What I want to know about is the monkey," demanded Dr. Muskrat. "Whatever became of him?"

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

SPECIAL WEEKS

National Giggle Week, Feb. 13 to Feb. 19
Be a Giggle!
Giggle for your country's commercial welfare!

Open faces mean open factories! What America needs today is more giggling. Business is suffering from a lack of confidence. One giggle may be the means of inspiring a captain of industry with a resolution to open the north wing of the mill. Two giggles may cause him to open the south wing. Ten giggles may open a whole plant. Who knows?

Giggle when you rise in the morning!
Giggle over your eggs. (Maybe they'll giggle back at you.)
Giggle on your way to business. Giggle at the boss! If he asks you what you're giggling about tell him he is a bum business man or he would know.

Giggle! Giggle! Giggle!
Wiggle-Your-Ears Week, Feb. 20 to Feb. 26

Here is a chance for every citizen to do his bit for a bigger and better America.

Nothing is such sure death to pessimism as a wiggle ear. One wiggle ear means a revival of industry.

Two wiggle ears mean bumper crops and greatly increased foreign trade.

Three wiggle ears mean prospering with a circus.
"If every person in the United States will wiggle his or her ears for one solid week the effect will be most gratifying," declared President Harding today. "After all, it is a little thing (the idea, not the ear), and every citizen should respond. Of course, there are some people whose ears, through lack of practice, have lost their elasticity. In such cases a string should be run through the lobe of each ear and manipulated by the hand. In the words of Marco Antony, 'Ye who have ears prepare to spread them now.'"

Palpitation of the Eye-Brows Week, Feb. 27 to March 5
Say it with eyebrows!
Whenever you hear any person complain of poor business answer him by a rapid raising and lowering of the eyebrows!

This will amaze him. (Ask any screen vampire.)

No man can face you and keep on talking about hard times, dimming about how-ways, etc., if you simply stare at him and work your brows properly. First thing you know you'll have him doing it, too.

And after that . . . the Great Industrial Revival!

Adam's Apple Week, March 6 to

March 12
Something very new in the way of dispelling the Glooms.
One out of every fifteen people has a protruding Adam's apple. When such a person is drinking ginger pop rapidly this cartilage goes through a series of amusing spasms. In all small communities where there is no vaudeville house such a person is always in demand for entertainment purposes.

The National Association for the Revival of Prosperity has figured that if all people with prominent Adam's apples would gather in groups of a dozen, go to the nearest business man, surround him and proceed to perform the business man would laugh himself into a fit of optimism and proceed to wire the wholesale houses the largest orders since 1916.

National Toe-to-Toe Week, March 13 to March 19
The idea behind this is much the same as that behind Adam's Apple Week.

American captains of industry must be put in a laughing mood. It is asserted by the various chambers of commerce that if every man, woman and child would tootin for one week while walking down the street it would put Big Business in a mood of unconfined joy.

Anyhow, it's worth a try.

CAL. TUBERCULOSIS FORCES AIDED BY SEAL SALES

Received $185,000 From December Token Disposal

Reports from the California Tuberculosis association issued at their headquarters today shows that the 14th annual seal sale conducted last December has reached $185,000. This is a remarkable showing in view of the financial depression and is only a very little below the 1920 scale which was considered a phenomenal sale.

"None of the work of the summer camps, clinics, preventoria, help for patients, educational work nor the nutrition program will suffer," said Edythe Tate-Thompson today. "Not only has the financial support been most gratifying but the interest in nearly every locality in the state makes us feel that control of tuberculosis in this state is in sight. The death rate dropping as it has from 189 per hundred thousands to 155 in five years is the proof that the program in this state is making itself felt."

OREGON ASSUMES COMMERCE MOTOR VEHICLE CONTROL

Commission Recognizes Right of Supervision
on Highways

SALEM, Ore., March 16.—The Oregon public service commission today took its initial step to recognize the importance of the commercial motor vehicle as a factor in interstate commerce and to exercise its right of supervision over this growing industry in accordance with the powers with which the special session of the legislature in December, 1921, clothed the public service body.

The hearings to gather data from which to frame a code of supervision convened this morning in the commission rooms in the state capitol. Fred A. Williams, chairman, presided.

The act passed by the legislature giving the public service commission this power, provides for the supervision and regulation of the transportation of persons and property for compensation over any public highway by any kind of vehicle or trailer, and defines the functions of competing operating companies so as to thoroughly standardize the industry under a system of permits, licenses and certificates.

Hitherto, motor transportation companies, both for passengers and for freight, were organized and disbanded overnight, attaching a reputation of precariousness and undependability to the whole structure of motor vehicle commerce. Little or no supervision was exercised over established and semi-established lines except that which had been, previously provided for in accordance with laws governing highways and motor vehicle transportation in general. No definite recognition was had of this sort of commercial transportation as an industry.

Just prior to and immediately after the legislature passed the regulation act, practically every large city and town in the state was according a stage depot, built by several companies pooling their terminal interests or by private individuals organizing such a terminal company and charging these companies a fee.

Of their own accord, a majority of established stage companies long ago attached voluntary regulations to their own transportation of passengers and freight, and have long operated along certain routes and under fixed schedules similar to those adopted by leading companies in California and Washington.

Those organizations which have done this survived the boom period of motor transportation and form the backbone of the industry the public service commission will now supervise according to law.

It is believed that little opposition to the commission's plans will develop in the hearings started today or in subsequent hearings which may be necessary. Established stage and freight companies welcome the regulation, as aside from supervising the lines themselves the commission will also regulate competition and say who shall and who shall not organize lines and operate along certain state lanes of commerce.

REALTY CARAVAN FORMED FOR HIKE

One Thousand Cars Will Take Los Angeles
Dealers Northwest

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 16. (United Press).—A great motor caravan is being organized here to bring Eastern delegates to the National Real Estate convention in San Francisco on May 29th.

The caravan will consist of more than a thousand cars, according to George C. Boardman, of San Francisco, who is adding in arrangement details. The trip will be made by way of the "valley route." Controls will be stationed all along the Ridge Route. The Automobile Club of Southern California will furnish pilot and escort cars and special souvenir maps.

"What kind of people are those who have just moved next door to you?" said Mrs. Gossip.

"Oh, I never talk about my neighbors," replied Mrs. Herdso. "All I know about them is that their stuff came in one load, that only one of their bestbeards has any brass on it, most of the furniture looks old, there's six in the family, the children are all boys, they have two dogs, the man is about twenty years older than the woman, they had a squabble with the driver of the van when they settled with him, and their name is Smith."

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

A KITCHEN CHAIR
By M. JESSIE LEITCH

Mary Louise had been in bed so long that she almost wept when she thought about it.

She had been very ill. But she was getting better, and the long days of pain were already hazy in the small girl's mind.

One morning the doctor, who was the nicest kind of a man, with ruddy hair and skin and a loud, pleasant laugh, said to Mary Louise that there was no reason in the world why she should not sit up in bed, with a back-rest, and look out of the window.

Unless you have spent a month in bed, flat on your back, with a splint holding you stiffly in position, you cannot appreciate the joyfulness of the occasion.

Mary Louise had been gazing at the white, cold ceiling for weeks.

Mary Louise overjoyed. And at the prospect of sitting up in bed she had to turn her head away to hide the tears. But they were tears of joy, as she carefully explained.

"What is a back-rest, mother?" the little girl asked, after the doctor had ordered pink ice cream and broiled steak for her lunch and gone out quietly, waving good-bye to the child from the doorway, as he always did.

"It's a thing to rest against when you sit up in bed," explained her mother, who was knitting a pink woolly shawl for Mary Louise to wear about her thin little shoulders when the days of sitting up in bed arrived.

"But have we got one? Won't we have to borrow one from the hospital?" asked the child.

"No, dear. We could borrow one, of course, but I know a very simple makeshift which will answer quite as well," replied her mother as she put down her knitting and went over to close the window until the child was propped up in bed.

"What is a makeshift, mother?" asked the child, who had the greatest of faith in her mother.

"In this case, a chair," smiled her mother. "A plain kitchen chair. I am going to get it now."

A moment later the mother reappeared with the plain kitchen chair, which was painted white.

Made The Ideal Back-Rest.

Having wrapped a fleecy scarf about the child's shoulders and placed an extra pillow close to the bed that she might reach it easily, the mother slipped one arm under her child's shoulders and with the other hand removed the pillow from beneath her head, placing it on the bedside table, which she had cleared in readiness.

Raising the child to an upright position, and holding her feather-weight easily with one strong arm, the mother placed the chair upside down, with the upper edge of the back and the outer edge of the seat resting on the mattress behind the child's head. One large pillow was placed lengthwise against the back of the chair. Three other pillows were arranged against this. The child rested easily against the pile of pillows, which rested against the chair, which, in turn, pressed against the head of the bed and could not slip. It was an ideal back-rest.

mother and said, "It is beginning of a pressure sore."

And Jan's mother, not knowing what a pressure sore was, said, "Is it anything like a bed sore?"

And the nurse said they were one and the same thing.

"When did you change the lower sheet?" asked the nurse.

"Not for a long time. It hurts his leg to move him," said Jan's mother.

So, when the crisp, fresh sheet was folded lengthwise and placed along the bed, to replace the long-used under sheet, it was found that there were many wrinkles in Jan's bed, and crumbs of food, as well as small particles of plaster, that had worked free from the plaster cast that encased the child's broken leg.

Crumbs A Frequent Cause

These, the nurse explained were most frequent causes of bed sores, or pressure sores. A bed, she said, should be kept smooth and dry beneath a patient. This is easily accomplished by using a small clean whisk broom on the lower sheet after each time the patient has had food. For crumbs have an uncanny way of slipping down the necks of bed-ridden patients and lodging on the lower sheet.

All bony prominences, such as elbows and heels and shoulder blades, are liable to pressure sores, the nurse explained, while Jan's mother listened patiently and quite gratefully.

A change of position, dry smooth sheets, an occasional rubbing with a soft bath towel to stimulate the circulation, and a generous use of soap and water, followed by a brisk rubbing with pure talcum powder, warded off little Jan's threatened pressure sore in this case, however.

Mother—Clarence, when I gave you and Edgar each an orange you both promised not to eat them until after dinner. Is it possible you have deceived me?

Clarence—No, mamma; I ate Edgar's and he ate mine.

MEEKER'S ORANGE MANOR UNIT

Second Offering of Seventy Lots Is Growing Rapidly

There have been few subdivisions opened in Glendale that have made such a stir in realty circles as has the opening of the second unit of Meeker's Orange Manor on East Colorado boulevard. There are something like 70 lots in this second unit, and although it has been but a few days since this second unit was announced, quite a number of the lots have already been disposed of. It is generally believed that those who are thinking of securing one or more lots in this subdivision should do so without further delay, as they are being snapped up rapidly.

All of the lots in this tract are of good size and are covered with bearing orange and lemon trees. These are the trees that have made Meeker's orange ranch famous. The fruit has been on sale at the stand on Colorado boulevard for the past several years, and enormous quantities of it have been purchased by tourists and residents alike during that time. The very act of repeating the words, "Meeker's orange grove," makes one think of a "better grade of fruit," and these are the very trees with which the lots in Meeker's Orange Manor are covered.

The first unit of this tract was sold out within a few weeks by Riddick & Driver, selling agents for the second unit. This firm formerly operated in Chicago, where they carried out the sale of some very large tracts. It is also operating in other sections of Southern California, but its principal selling field is Glendale. It is the belief of this company that Glendale is the coming city of the southern end of the state, and this is why it is making this section its headquarters.

Water, gas and electricity are already in this tract and are paid for, and the contract for the street work, which will start within a few days, has already been let. An excellent grade of street work will be done in this tract, all of the work to comply with specifications of the city of Glendale.

FISHER'S VARIETY
STORE TO ENLARGE

Business has been so good during the past few months for Fisher's Variety store on East Broadway that it has been found necessary to greatly enlarge the floor space of the establishment. The addition that is being made to the rear of the store is 28 by 38 feet in size. This brings the floor space of the store up to 4124 square feet. This makes this one of the largest and best stocked variety stores in any suburban city in Southern California.

Everything from needles to house furniture can be purchased at this store. There are more things in this store than in any business establishment in Glendale. There are features that would fit in any home, and everything in the store is sold on the small-profit-many-sales basis. This assures the people of Glendale the very best goods for the lowest prices possible.

Have you seen Spinnem's latest fishing outfit? said Mr. Glumm, "and I want to hear it."

"Well, Spinnem hasn't even spoken of it yet. I wouldn't describe a small fishing outfit without making you think it was something you'd have."

$35,000 FLOTSAM OF SEA-FOUND ON BEACH

Lighthouse Keeper Picks
Up Chunk of Ambergris on Shore

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16. (United Press).—Fortune literally washed itself up to the door of Harry Flint, keeper of a lonely government lighthouse on the black rocks of Kalae point, the southernmost tip of the island of Hawaii.

The story of how wealth came to the tender of a lighthouse far off in mid-Pacific, reads like a south sea novel.

One day, while walking upon the beach near his light, Flint noticed a very curious substance on the beach with a peculiar odor. He gathered together 80 pounds of it as salvage and sent a sample by light house tender to Honolulu to be analyzed.

He received a report in due time that the substance was ambergris, the prize jewel of the snail-like beluga vessels, and the foundation of the fortune of many a New England skipper's family in the olden days.

Ambergris is a secretion formed in the intestines of sperm whales. It resembles tallow mixed with bees-wax, and is highly prized in the manufacture of perfumes.

The present market value of ambergris is $23 an ounce, and Flint's fortune from his salvage is now estimated at $35,000. Flint recently arrived here from Honolulu and made arrangements to cash in on his treasure.

Flint declares that he had frequently seen the material before, floating on the sea near his station. Many whales, he said, frequent that district. He had heretofore never given any attention to the matter. He is planning on organizing a company to salvage the ambergris in that district, and is sure that fortune awaits him as a result of his exile in a forgotten corner of the "Paradise of the Pacific."

PEBBLE BEACH PAPER CHASE

Del Monte Sports Will Hold Event on
March 29

DEL MONTE, Cal., March 16. (U. P.).—The annual Pebble Beach paper chase will be held on March 29th, the original date having been called off because of wet grounds. The chase will start from the Del Monte Lodge, and extend over the picturesque trails for a distance of 4 miles. Many entrants will come from the polo set, and the officers and their wives from Monterey Presidio.

The paper chase has long been a popular sport with horse lovers. A racer known as the hare starts out five minutes in advance of the flight, and lays a trail of cut paper which horsemen follow to the finishing point. The contestants race up and down the hills, and it develops into a thrilling contest.

The new date will stage the contest during the course of the annual spring polo tournament which starts March 26th and lasts until April 9th.

Truths in Epigram

The disease of an evil conscience is beyond the practice of all the physicians of all the countries in the world. — Gladstone (1809-1898).

Silver and gold are not the only coin; virtue too passes current all over the world. — Euripides (484-406 B. C.).

KEEPING OUT THE UNFIT

Chairman Albert Johnson of the house immigration committee seems determined to bring about some means of protecting the United States against an influx of the undesirable. His efforts have been balked thus far by the fact that certain nationalities entering into the fabric of citizenship, resent any restriction as applied to their kinsmen overseas. It may be necessary to waive consideration of these relationships.

Johnson is seeking to frame a law by which enemies of the country may be kept out of the country. Nothing could be fairer. Having here a certain form of government, to the great majority, a pleasing arrangement, there has seemed no hesitancy in allowing the entry of avowed foes of law and order. These arrive to be welcomed by others of their kind, and are soon engaged in making bombs, or in explaining why bombs should be made and hurled at whatever represents prosperity, law or social order.

In this state alone there are more than 100,000 white adults unable to read or write. Other sections are even worse in this respect. It is a shame that illiteracy is permitted. There really is no excuse for it. As to youth, the schools are available and attendance should be compulsory. Neglect that makes it possible for a child to grow up ignorant of the alphabet, is wholly inexcusable. Education should be forced upon the adult. There is scant chance for any individual who cannot read and write, to be a useful citizen, doing himself or the community any good. On the contrary, he is likely to be a public burden, always submerged, always a liability; never an asset.

The prevalence of illiteracy is a peril to the national safety. Add to the mass of ignorance already here, thousands from other lands, who have not had opportunity to learn even by contact, something of the spirit of America, and the peril is much accentuated. The first duty is to fit the unlettered of this country for their part as members of society. Then when the evil shall have been overcome, perhaps there would be greater wisdom in letting the gates stand open to the selected alien.

WRITTEN BY HUGHES

The four-power Pacific treaty was written by Secretary Hughes. He has so stated. His word will not be questioned.

There had been an effort to becloud the authorship. Insinuations were many that the paper had been written by British statesmen, or by the Japanese, and brought here to be forced down the throats of the impotent statesmen who were trying so pitifully to represent the United States. Of course these assertions were silly and slanderous, but reiteration may have caused them to be believed.

The conference at which the treaty was approved by the powers, had been called by the President. He had called it for a very definite purpose. This purpose was carried out to an extent that hardly had been hoped. Secretary Hughes was the dominant figure of the gathering. He was not being led; he was leading. He was not asking the other delegates the course he might take. He was telling them the course, as determined in advance, inviting them to endorse it.

The bitterest and shallowest, and yet most noisy opponent of the treaty is Hearst. With him are a few senators. There is La Follette, pro-German in the war; Borah, by nature a belligerent dissenter; Reed; who at least is consistent in that he also, then as now without valid excuse, opposed also, the League of Nations.

The question before the senate is whether the guidance of Hearst is to be accepted, rather than the guidance of Harding and Hughes, the latter two, patriots and men of ability. There appears no great reason for hesitancy in formulating the answer.

FRAUDS IN CHARITY

Charges are made that certain Gotham missions are on a paying basis, because "cadgers, loafers, and panhandlers are trained to get money for stockholders." The mere fact that the charges are made hardly constitutes proof that there is any basis in fact for them. No mission for the uplift of the unfortunate ever failed to excite opposition.

Frauds do creep into the administration of charity, however. The fact is to be regretted, but it is hard to detect. The frauds appear in places where they would not have been expected. Organizations with sounding titles have collected vast sums in the name of charity, and expended most of it in administration. Some years ago a New York paper investigating the subject discovered that in instances, out of each dollar contributed in good faith for relief of distress, fifty cents went for payment of office rents and the salaries of sleek and well-nourished office attaches. In one case only one dollar out of each four dollars donated, reached the ostensible destination. Three dollars were expended in the effort to expend the fourth on behalf of the needy.

If the roustabouts of the New York slums are engaged in gathering funds for the enriching of supposed representatives of charity, they are not establishing any precedent. Nevertheless, it is, of course, proper that their activities be checked, and also the activities of the better-clad from which they have drawn inspiration.

The whole problem is difficult, because there is a real desire to feed the hungry. There are multitudes who give with the best intentions. They give without the possibility of knowing what is to become of their offerings. And for "organized charity" to lack all creditableness, is no rare spectacle.

ENFORCING THE LAW

There is a secret organization that announces its purpose as that of enforcing the law. Its method are in themselves defiant of the statutes, and contrary to the principles embodied in the constitution. Therefore is the insincerity of the organization manifest, and its activities are a menace to good order.

A colored man of Denver, regarded as a leader among the people of his race there, has been ordered to leave the city. The warning he received concludes with the threat, "We will get you if you don't." Behind such cowardly methods there cannot be good purpose. When the Ku Klux Klan applied for a charter in Colorado, this colored man was among a number to file a protest. Most of the protesting individuals were negroes. They knew that the "K. K. K." was a thing to be dreaded by them. They were quite within their rights in objecting. They were merely objecting to lynch law, to a peculiarly obnoxious form of mob rule.

These sheeted wanderers of the night have no valid excuse for being. They have used their power to terrorize, in order to demonstrate racial and class hatred. They have selected as victims men against whom some of their number entertained grudges. They have condemned their captives without trial, subjecting them to indecencies unspeakable. On the pretense that they were upholding justice they have assailed every proper instrument of justice.

It is a singular thing if anywhere in the United States there should be a community so lacking in intelligence and public spirit as to permit these anomalous creatures to hold sway.

The congress may advise the banks to lend money on the proposed compensation certificates, but we doubt whether they can compel them to. And if the banks are not compelled to, good banking may suggest that the loans may not be made. It would be a good thing beforehand to know where the money is coming from before the passage of a bonus bill.

Kentucky proposes a law forbidding the teaching of Darwinism, evolution or any of the new fangled notions with reference to the origin of man. This is designed, we take it to perpetuate the fame of Kentucky as the "dark and bloody ground."

We trust a coal strike may not be added to the other trials of the country. This is the time for a little of the good sense union labor leaders and operators must have, if they choose to exercise it.

Men are always telling what they would do under certain circumstances, but when the aforesaid circumstances happen along they invariably do something different.

The best Russian relief we know of could be relief from the Lenins and Trozkys.

Unknown Famous Men—Cagliostro

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Foremost and most spectacular of unknown celebrities is Cagliostro.

All of us have read that fascinating string of novels by Alexander Dumas, including the Three Musketeers, The Queen's Necklace, Joseph Balsamo and the rest.

In the life of Joseph Balsamo he dealt with this character of Cagliostro, a figure which had strongly impressed the imagination of Europe.

No one seems to know just who Cagliostro really was, and no two people appear to have agreed about the acts of his life. And this was Cagliostro's hold; he was a professional man of mystery. He had all of the showman's art of concealment.

What is certain is that a strange man who claimed to be sometimes a physician, sometimes a spiritualistic medium, sometimes an alchemist, roamed about Europe in the days that preceded the French revolution.

Dumas called him Joseph Balsamo, but he called himself Cagliostro, although he claimed not to know his real name and he did not even stick to this one name at all times and places.

He said that he was born in Medina in 1749. Whether he was from Medina or Palermo, we know that he came up to London at the time of the outbreak of the American revolution. Just how or where he got his money to come nobody knows. We do know, however, that he had an affair with the London police and was accused of getting money under false pretenses.

We find him again in Amsterdam, in Frankfurt, in Berlin; in Konigsberg.

Again suddenly the whole of Saint Petersburg is agog about a great magician. Cagliostro had arrived. Those were days favorable to his craft. Meiser was then announcing his first attempts in hypnotism. Swedenborg had convinced many people that it was a very simple matter to converse with the angels. Freemasonry was in its virile youth, and as Cagliostro was thought to be high up in masonic circles that added to his glamour of mystery.

Everybody in Petrograd was seeing ghosts and having other strange psychic experiences.

Next he showed up in Warsaw, and afterwards in Strasbourg.

In Strasbourg he was not a crook nor a magician; he was a physician, and a physician who could cure anything. It would take a large book to hold the account of all the strange and marvellous stories of his doings in Strasbourg.

Then he went to Paris where he posed as a seer. He would get his house full of people and give mystical speeches, after the manner of the theosophists. It is but fair to say, however, that the theosophists would not accept him as one of their number any more than would the doctors or the chemists.

He got into trouble again in Paris, as he seemed to find trouble everywhere. The queen's necklace disappeared; that famous necklace that had much to do with the French revolution. Cagliostro was mixed up in this but finally was declared innocent and betook himself to London.

After two years in London the place grew too hot for him again and he went to Switzerland and then to Rome.

That was the end of him. For in 1791 he got into trouble with the Inquisition, an institution that was just as mysterious and much more powerful than he. He was locked up in the fortress of San Leone. There they turned the key upon him and there he disappeared from history.

THE LISTENING POST

A man was sitting at a desk.
In the interval of business.
He had what we call a breathing spell.
Although there is really no such thing as that kind of "breathing spell."

For every few seconds we have a "breathing spell."

We breathe eighteen times a minute when we are in pretty good health.
And the process of breathing is carried on so naturally and easily that we do not realize we are breathing at all.
Unless some illness or weakness disturbs us.

All through the night and sleep the process goes on.
Naturally and uninterruptedly.
Some impulse directs it.
Without our volition.
Just as the impulse of the heart continues.

So breathing spells are continuous through life.
But when we can lay down the task or job and do nothing but breathe and muse, we call that a breathing spell.

The man at the desk held a pen in his hand.
Dipped it in the ink.
Seemed to be weighing something in his mind.
He was apparently in doubt.

At last he had decided.
He dipped the pen in the ink and drove it over the sheet of letter paper before him.
Wrote a few lines.
Signed them and put them in an envelope.
And wrote an address.

A postage stamp and the letter was dropped into a box.
To go on its way.
And in the due course of time it reached the person to whom it was addressed.

And he opened it.
The man who opened the letter showed signs of care and worry.
His face was deeply lined.
As though he had been through trouble and trial.
And needed comfort.

There are many persons like that in the world.
More than you may think.
And this one of the strugglers opened the letter.
Read it.
And smiled.

For the letter said something like this:
"Dear Old Man:
Troubles come to all of us.
I've had mine.
I'm mighty sorry for yours."

"And I just wanted to say that I have thought of you, and wished I could do something.
And I wanted you to remember that who has health, courage and spirit can and will overcome every obstacle."

"In the meantime, I'm your friend and my heart is warm and I want to help if I can.
Keep up courage and consider this a handclasp and a good wish."

And the troubled and worried man smiled again.
And then a tear fell.
And his spirit softened and was touched.
And he said:
"Good Old Boy!
That was fine of him."

And he went at his work with renewed courage.
And all because of a few lines in a letter.
That the other man had hesitated about writing.
Wondering after all if it would do any good.
JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Palm Tree and the Pine—Richard M. Milnes (1809-1885)

Beneath an Indian palm a girl
Of other blood reposes,
Her cheek is clear and pale as pearl,
Amid that wild of roses.

Beside a northern pine a boy
Is leaning fancy-bound,
Nor listens where 'with noisy joy
Awaits the impatient hound.

Cool grows the sick and feverish calm—
Relaxed the frosty twine—
The pine-tree dreameth of the palm,
The palm-tree of the pine.

As soon shall nature interlace
Those dimly-visioned boughs,
As these young lovers face to face
Renew their early vows!

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

WHAT THE NAVY NEEDS

[Kansas City Star]

The question of how many men ought to be retained in the navy does not seem to present such a problem as congress is making of it. There should be enough men in the navy to man the ship in the navy.

MYSTERIES OF THE SEA

[Ohio State Journal]

Romance and mystery have not been taken from the high seas; even with the many inventions of man that help annihilate space and permit communication with the world in its faraway places. During the last year twenty-six vessels that left port for a voyage failed to arrive at their destinations. They steamed away and disappeared. What fate they met, how it came and where, all are a part of the mystery of the sea.

Probably some mine, planted during the war and not picked up when peace came, broke loose from its moorings, was caught up by the great ocean current.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

What's the use of telling what we would do if we could be somebody else? We can't be, and that's all there is to that! How utterly senseless to spend what time and thought we might be devoting to making something out of ourselves just as we are! But we're so constituted that idle thought is easy. Actual accomplishment is seldom so.

So we shut our eyes to the latter and never realize that we wouldn't recognize an opportunity if it came toward us with bells about its neck, blowing a horn. Unless it is unusually trained, the human eye, when watching for one special thing, allows much else to go by unnoticed. So does the human mind.

The very first step to real accomplishment is vision. Not of some one else's success so much as of that possible for us. Others can only help, indirectly, and never, unless we are first attuned to their aid. We'd every one of us be on the top rung of the ladder if we could persuade others to boost us there. Sometimes some unusually faithful, powerful, loyal friend will place us there for a time. But we usually find it very shaky, because we lack the firmness of muscle sheer climbing brings. We're very likely to go hurtling down at the first slight tremor.

We are such adepts at self-excuse. "If I had only had his chance!" "If I had only given me her personality!" "If I only had time!" No use of going through the whole seventeen million of them, is there? They're all both, anyway.

Let's throw them all away as far as we can toss, and stand on our own feet, squarely. We all have energy. Why not use it to a purpose?

rents and carried out into the lanes of travel. Probably other vessels will be in collision with the lost mines, for there are many not yet accounted for. Each mine may mean another mystery of the sea. The inventions of man have done much to make safer the navigations of the wide waters, but all the inventions of man thus far have not operated to take from the sea the mystery that has enveloped it since sailing first began.

NOT A DEBT OF HONOR

[Textile World]

In the crude but illuminating language of the underworld Commander MacNider, implies that capital and labor "got theirs" during the war, and now the world war veterans want theirs. And he, and a host of politicians eager to exploit the veterans' vote, would have us believe that some "5,000,000" veterans men and women, and 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 more of their immediate families" constitute a real bloc that will out from power any politician, or congressman daring to oppose them.

We don't believe that even one-third of the world war veterans and their families are so devoid of honor and sentiment as to be willing to sell themselves for such a mess of pottage. But we do acknowledge that the world war veteran bloc politically is a serious menace to the future of the administration. It is not a debt of honor that is to be settled, but a political debt, and in sordid politics it is customary to buy the opposition as cheaply as possible.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

There are people so constituted as to deny the prevalence of influenza. This is explained largely by the fact that they have escaped a visitation. For those who have not escaped, to feel a certain irritation over the coarseness of the immune, is quite natural. Happily it does not go to the extent of wishing the others would have a turn at wrestling with the microbe. That would be too harsh a wish. Two classes of individuals are to be found among victims of the influenza. The first, and limited class, die of it, and the second experience a period of regret because they do not die of it. They come back slowly, painfully, and with many a grunt, to normal. They have to resume their tasks while still unfit, but each day are conscious of being a little stronger, and ultimately reach the stage at which life affords glimpses of joy. Then they meet the lucky citizen who has not been shunted to a couch of agony, listen to him as he brags, and within them swells a great desire to kill him. This marks the period of convalescence.

The victim of influenza acquires a temperature that may not go higher than 103. It may go so high that it stays aloft until rigor mortis sets in. He realizes as never before that he is a vertebrate animal, for every section of his spine harbors an ache compared with which the ordinary pang of an ulcerated tooth is a mere caress. He coughs in the manner of a locomotive on the up-grade, and from his system brings forth a vast accumulation of waste. With each cough his lungs flop over two or three times, threatening to twist lose from their moorings. He has for days no appetite. He lies in a stupor when his misery will permit.

The doctor comes in, looking a little pale about the gills himself, and half-concealing a furtive cough of his own. He prescribes, and a billion microbes roll over in glee, each microbe fooled as a centipede, and a stinger in every foot.

These few remarks are intended to stimulate the medical profession to get busy in studying influenza, and devising means to protect the world against it.

Will Hays, as head of moving picture production, says that part of his task will be to eliminate undesirable films. He would thus remove the excuse for the chatter about censorship, which has become very tiresome. Of course, some who clamor for a censorship are sincere, but the loudest noise comes from persons in quest of a job, or wishful to continue living soft in the role of reformers.

Civil service is an excellent thing when honestly applied to public affairs. Some question arises, however, as to the integrity of the plan to place the police chief of Los Angeles under civil service. No chief of police in that city ever yet has had a free hand. Men of ability and character have undertaken the work, and have had to retire, beaten by the politicians. It is possible that the extension of civil service to include the chief and his immediate subordinates, would give the politicians a new grip; which they do not seem to need.

This state has reason to be proud of the California Institute of Technology, situated at Pasadena. Recent gifts of Dr. Norman Bridge have given this school material impetus towards greatness. In educational facilities, especially as to matters of research, this western Tech stands on the level of the famous Boston Tech. There would be nothing surprising in a growth sufficient to make it the equal of the Boston school in size and influence.

Regardless of whatever illicit trade there may be in whisky, doctors still prescribe it in certain cases. It is considered useful in combination with eggs and milk, in building up depleted strength following, for instance, an experience with the flu.

The patient has a legitimate kick. The pint of whisky he gets costs him $3.50, in addition to the medical fee. It is whisky of the quality that once sold at $1 a quart.

There is no scarcity of whisky. Why cinch the unfortunate who is ordered to take it? He has troubles enough.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

My wife says she has spoiled the Brown divorce case. She has knocked some deserving lawyer—no, two deserving lawyers—out of a fee apiece. And she did it so easily that she has to smile in looking back.

"Just by taking ribbons away from Mrs. Brown," said she.

You don't know Mrs. Brown, of course. But she used to look like Mrs. Guy Fawkes. There wasn't a curve or angle on her frame to which she did not anchor a ribbon or a dingle-dangle of some sort, or a fringe or something to jingle. She wasn't a bad-looking woman if she had let herself alone. Fact is, she is a mighty good-looking woman. But by the time she finished dressing for her impersonation of Young Hair-in-the-Eye, the Sioux Squaw, she would scare a city horse.

Brown is one of the silent, observing, tongue-tied sort. He made several attempts, to correct the more obvious faults of Mrs. Brown's apparel, and got precisely what every husband gets who clambers on that particular thin ice. He began to pull away. He did not go out with his wife, for—to tell the straight truth about it—he was ashamed of her. It is no good saying that he was not a loyal husband. Even loyal husbands often have their faculties and the power of thought. Not even a loyal husband could enjoy going out with a woman at whom people openly laughed when they saw her on the street. Poor Mrs. Brown felt him slipping away from her and redoubled her efforts to hold. By that I mean she put on more ribbons and more bells and more fluttering ends.

"You do not know how to dress," my wife said one day.

She is terribly plain spoken on occasions, is Mrs. Pilgrim, and she told Mrs. Brown just what was the matter and they had a truly feminine racket which ended in tears and a reconciliation and an agreement by Mrs. Pilgrim that she should take charge of the other woman's wardrobe. She got rid of those trunkfuls of terrible junk poor Mrs. Brown had pathetically accumulated in her effort to make herself pretty in her husband's eyes. Whenever Mrs. Brown protested Mrs. Pilgrim waved a monitory finger at her. "I've had that same finger waved at me, and I know the effect."

"But I don't like that," Mrs. Brown protested when Mrs. Pilgrim began to buy the new dresses.

"Do you love your husband?" was the reply discourteous. It's all over now. Mrs. Brown knows what she can wear, and no matter how much her unregenerate, savage, barbarian taste pulls at her, she depends on line and pose rather than on the Derby day effects she used to value. And the Browns are happy as ever, and Brown has gone back to bragging about his wife.

But Mrs. Brown is one woman in a million. No other woman I know would have submitted to that sort of rough stuff.

LODGES - CLUBS - CHURCHES

McBOYLES' SON ENTERTAINS FRIENDS
John Arthur McBoyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McBoyle, 369 Milford street, entertained a number of his friends Wednesday afternoon at a jolly birthday party in honor of his sixth birthday.

Yellow acacia blossoms were used in the living room and the color scheme in the dining room and on the table was green and white. Little green baskets filled with Easter egg candies marked the places and each guest was presented with a green St. Patrick's cap which he wore the remainder of the afternoon. A very pleasant afternoon of games was enjoyed and John received a football as a gift, so they all helped him enjoy it.

The refreshments were angel-food cake on top of which stood six green candles, and white cream with a green shamrock in the center.

The guests were Wallace Plumb, David Hellyer, Gale Thomas, Geo. Lepper, Marion Delbert Feuze, Dean Lepper, Teddy Robertson, Billy MacMillan, Barbara Plumb, Miss Evelyn Nelson and Miss Ne-ta Feuze, the latter two assisting Master John in receiving his guests and serving refreshments. Mrs. Wallace Plumb also assisted.

MUTUAL BENEFIT READING CIRCLE
The regular meeting of the Mutual Benefit Reading circle was held Wednesday at the library, Mrs. A. A. Barton, president, presiding.

Mrs. Danford, librarian, gave a fine talk to the women, dealing with the work being done toward building up the juvenile department. She told how, during the influenza epidemic, she and her assistants had mounted and catalogued numerous pictures, ranging in subjects from American historic scenes to a collection of butterflies. These pictures, Mrs. Danford says, are now on file at the library for the use of any school, organization or individual, and may be drawn in the same manner as library books.

The afternoon was devoted to the study of child culture, dealing with the value of mythology and folk lore in education, taken from the book "Moral Education," by Briggs. The review for next week will be on the "Illiteracy Conference."

ATWOOD SPEAKS TO PARENT-TEACHERS OF HIGH SCHOOL

Indicated Opposition to Changes in Federal Constitution

John E. Atwood of Chicago, was the speaker at the meeting of the High School Parent-Teacher association Wednesday afternoon and made the same address he had given ten days before at the Tuesday Afternoon club.

He stated that he had been a student of the science of government ever since his boyhood and when he observed chaotic conditions in Russia, Mexico, China, he asked himself what were the causes and remedies and decided a constitution like that of the United States would be the only thing that could bring order out of anarchy.

He indicated in no uncertain way his opposition to any change in the federal constitution or any alteration in the interpretations of its provisions as set forth by Alexander Hamilton, seeming to think that wisdom, so far as the constitution is concerned, had died with that great statesman and nothing was left for this country except to keep the government in the straight and narrow path of legislation by the chosen few elected as representatives. He is very much afraid of any direct exercise of power by the people through the initiative, referendum and recall as inimical to the established order, as mob rule, anarchy, etc., having clearly a great distrust of the intelligence and patriotism of the people and a settled conviction that any exercise of democracy through the direct voice of the people is dangerous and will undermine the constitution. He declared that Hamilton and his associates distinctly warned their countrymen against democracy. Said he:

"If you are going to have democracy in a republic you might as well say you are going to ruin the republic. There is nothing democratic about the constitution of the United States and no such thing was contemplated by the constitution as submitting a question to the people. It was never done until 110 years after the constitution was written."

When, after the meeting, some ventured to differ with him in respect to the initiative, referendum and recall, he lost his temper and challenged their intelligence.

A rural editor says he was grossly insulted but once, and that was when some heartless wretch offered him a cash register in exchange for advertising.

A bluff is seldom a luxury, and often is a grim necessity.

An epigram is anything mean that can be said in a two-line poem.

HOME MISSIONERS HEAR WORK OF GIRLS' HOME

Women's Society of First Methodist Church Holds Instructive Meeting

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Methodist church gave a missionary dinner Wednesday night in the church parlors. About 250 people, those in charge of the dinner were Mrs. Charles Starkey, Mrs. Ed M. Lee and Mrs. C. W. Spickerman. The decorations throughout the spacious room were carried out in acacia blossoms which made an attractive effect.

After the dinner they went up to the prayer meeting room, but instead of holding the regular prayer meeting they held a meeting appropriate to the work of the Women's Home Missionary society. Mrs. Geiger, president, presided over the meeting.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. J. B. Warner, who represented the department of evangelism. The second address was by Mrs. C. M. Crist, representing the David and Margaret home at LaVerne. Mrs. Crist told of the work being done there. There are 81 children in the home, which is supported by the Women's Home Missionary societies of the Methodist denomination. It is for orphans or half-orphans. A scholarship to this home is $70 and it is hoped that more scholarships may be given.

In the 10 years that this home has been operated, there has been but one death among the children and at present there are no sick ones in the home.

The next number on the program was a number by the male quartet, composed of Dr. P. O. Lucas, D. C. R. Lusby, Paul Butterfield and Frank Butterfield.

Mrs. Scripps, who represented the Esther Home for Working Girls at San Diego, spoke of the work in the home. If the girls are able, they pay something for staying at this home, but if not, the Women's Home Missionary society makes up the rest of the money needed. This is a beautiful home and students who have no other home to go to, may be taken in here but it was originally intended for working girls only. The girls are under religious influence at all times, but may attend the church of their preference.

Mrs. C. D. Lusby then spoke of the work in the immigrant home at San Pedro. Mrs. Lusby told of Miss Nellie Sanborn, superintendent of the home, who is now acting in the capacity of traveler's aid. Miss Sanborn meets the boats as they come in and if there are those who know not where they want to go, or are trying to hunt up relatives or friends in this country, she fits into the emergency and helps them to the immigrant home and keeps them until they get settled and acquainted. Miss Sanborn is a deaconess in the Methodist denomination.

This interesting talk was followed by a vocal solo by Miss Dorothy Peart, entitled "This is My Task."

Mrs. Edward Hoskyn told of the work being done at the France De Pau home in Los Angeles which is for Spanish girls. She told of the beautiful new home which has just been dedicated on Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles. There are now 120 girls in the home and all are given an opportunity to learn domestic work and also are taken right through the 8th grade of the school and through high school. There are school rooms and teachers provided for the building.

The closing talk was given by Mrs. Collins who told of the children's work. In the First Methodist church of Glendale, they are organizing a children's work to be carried on by both the home and foreign missionary societies and it includes children up to 12 years of age. They are taught the work of both societies and educated along this line. The money received from this children's organization goes toward the orphanages that are owned by the Women's Home Missionary societies, of which there are five in the United States. These societies take the American flag as their emblem and their motto is "America for Christ." The Home Missionary society deals with American people and all foreigners in America that need them. They try to help them and educate them and prepare them to go back to their native country and do missionary work.

After each one of these most interesting and educational talks, prayer was offered. Rev. Crist closed the meeting.

It is expected that between $75 and $100 was raised by this dinner which will go for work that has not otherwise been provided for in this country.

"I wish you wouldn't spend so much valuable time powdering and rouging and penciling!" exclaimed the exasperated mother of the pretty debutante. "To say nothing of plucking your eyebrows and tying your head up in veils to keep the marcel in! It's ridiculous!"

"I don't know any better way of spending valuable time," retorted the pretty debutante, peering into the mirror to get the effect of her left ear bun. "What should I do with it?"

"Something worth while!" said her exasperated mother tartly. "Nobody who amounts to anything is going to marry a girl who thinks a complete household equipment consists of a powder puff and a lipstick!"

"But lots of the girls do get married," pointed out the pretty debutante kindly. "Men just won't pay any attention to a dowdy girl these days—and you might just as well wear hoopskirts and a bustle and a waterfall as not put on war paint!"

See how awful that Tlena Hooper looks! She doesn't even powder and they could use her nose for a street light!"

"Tlena is a splendid girl!" insisted the exasperated mother, a bit undecidedly as Tlena loomed before her mental vision. "While her mother was away last summer she canned a hundred quarts of fruit and made peach jam with her own hands."

"I'll bet nobody ever wants in the slightest to hold her hands, either!" declared the pretty debutante, regarding her own lily white and useless members. "And it is so easy to telephone the grocer for peach jam when you want it! Nobody has asked Tlena to a party in ages. She drags her hair back from her ears, too, and men are really shocked at ears nowadays."

The closing talk was given by Mrs. Collins who told of the children's work. In the First Methodist church of Glendale, they are organizing a children's work to be carried on by both the home and foreign missionary societies and it includes children up to 12 years of age. ### Oddities of Sleep

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc. (Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Sleep, defined by one authority as the resting time of consciousness, is universally recognized as the prime antidote for fatigue, mental or physical. Yet, singularly enough, it is an antidote often difficult to apply by those who need it most. To become overtired may mean running the risk of an exhausting wakefulness.

Consequently all who wish to sleep well should make it a rule to woo sleep before excessively fatiguing themselves. And if circumstances bring excessive fatigue upon them—as happens at times to virtually everybody—they should not be complainingly surprised if sleep does not come with wanted rapidity.

Sleep remains away from them sleepily because their overtiredness has made them nervously tense. Tenseness and sleep are incompatible. By some means mental and physical relaxation must be regained before sleep can be had. This is why one's determined effort to sleep is bound to defeat itself. To try to force one's self to sleep means to keep one's self tense, hence wakeful.

Whereas even the excessively fatigued, if only they can contrive to relax—by lying quietly in bed, counting slowly to themselves, saying over nonsense verses, etc.—will soon be rewarded by passing first into a semi-waking state, then into the state of complete sleep.

Sleep, again, as is commonly known, may readily be broken, not only by external disturbances, but by unpleasant internal sensations. For this reason the eating of a hearty evening meal, or eating anything late at night, is pretty generally regarded as inimical to sleep.

And so it will prove to be, if the sensations of indigestion are provoked thereby. On the other hand, sensations of hunger are equally potent sleep-disturbers.

There are many people, especially among those subject to an unduly early awakening, who really ought to eat a little something shortly before retiring. The wakefulness which they perhaps attribute to indigestion is actually in their case a sign of a need of food.

Concerning sleep, too, there is this further peculiarity, which ought to be more generally appreciated than is the case: Those who are most "alive" when awake—that is, who are intensely interested in their work and in other waking activities—can get along with less sleep than the lethargic or semi-interested.

One would naturally expect the opposite. For, manifestly, the semi-interested must use up less energy than the interested, and consequently would seem to be in less need of the recuperative benefits of sleep.

But interest itself is an energy producer. This is proved by the increased ease with which workers perform when applying themselves to tasks in which they take an uncommon interest, as compared with their performance of tasks that hold little or no interest for them.

Accordingly it may truly be said that the intensely interested have a larger fund of energy on which to draw, and are less subject to fatigue than those who have to force themselves to work and think. Which explains why a Napoleon, a Franklin, an Edison, exceptionally interested in their various undertakings, thrive despite a smaller sleep allowance than that of the average man.

BOOTLEGGING L. A. GETS WORLD SPORTS IF FRANCE DEFAULTS

Prohibition Director Describes Class Who Patronize Mule Makers

WASHINGTON, March 16.—"If men and women of means who pay high prices for liquor would refuse to buy liquor, bootlegging would cease." This is the word that comes to prohibition headquarters from Wilmington, Delaware. Federal Prohibition Director Robert B. Elliott of Delaware sets forth his views as follows:

"Bootlegging thrives because citizens, who are neither poor nor ignorant, constitute the market."

Director Elliott makes an optimistic report of Delaware conditions and says that violations are falling off as a result of an aroused citizenship.

"The situation, when studied carefully, is found to be hopeful," he said. "Furthermore, people take their lives into their own hands when they drink an unknown beverage. Every sample that we have analyzed has contained fusel oil. This substance causes the lips and body to turn blue and removes oxygen from the blood. Fusel oil is a product of fermentation. It consists of a combination of the higher alcohols of which amy is the chief constituent. One of the greatest dangers is that the illicit manufacturer or home brewer, as a rule, does not know what proportions to be used in making the product."

French Committee Given Warning by Its President

PARIS, March 16.—Los Angeles will automatically be awarded the 1924 Olympic games if France is forced to default, Baron Coubertin, president of the International Olympic committee, said today.

The French Olympic council meets this afternoon to consider the action of the municipal council and it may be that the council will forfeit the games for lack of funds.

The municipal council was asked by the Olympic committee for 10,000,000 francs to provide a site and stage the games in a fitting manner. The council appropriated only 1,000,000 francs, which the committee claims to be inadequate.

Other disagreements between the municipal and Olympic authorities have made it appear doubtful for some time that the games would be held here. One faction wanted a new stadium built, while another suggested that the Pershing stadium, built by the American army and given to France, was good enough.

Also it had been suggested by politicians that spending 10,000,000 francs on sports would not put France in a consistent attitude when large war bills are to be paid.

WARM ELECTION INTEREST

Rally Citizens to Register Before March Twenty-First

An interesting time at the coming election on April 10 is now almost certain. Nomination papers are now being taken out by the candidates and others will be doing so until March 21, which is the last day for filling these papers.

All voters must be registered for this election by Saturday at midnight, 30 days before the date of the election.

At this writing the following have announced their candidacy: Robert Abbot, present mayor. Cromwell Galpin, for 3 years member of board. Martin V. Shaff, for 8 years member of board. Sherrill B. Osborne, attorney at law, resident of Grand View avenue.

Dr. H. B. Crawford, well-known dentist at Eagle Rock, residing on East Adams avenue. F. W. Schleuter, carpenter and contractor, living on South Central avenue. George Fettes, painter, resident of North Hartwick street.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

GLS ENTERTAIN

There is some excitement in the domestic science department of Glendale High today for Doris Osborne and Lucile Nelson, members of the advanced class, are giving tonight in the department bungalow the first of a series of dinners for members of the faculty. The two girls are responsible for the preparation of the menu and the serving of the meal but will be assisted by their class associates.

It is to be a St. Patrick dinner and menu covers will be laid for ten. Menu and place cards have been combined in pretty green paper covers on which the name of the guest has been printed in white, also the menu, which includes shamrock broth, Paddy's Murphies, Killarney Leses Kildare Karoes, Erin Go Bragh salad, Wild Irish Rose cake, shamrock rolls, and the girls baked this morning, Thomas Moore ice cream and "taty."

An Irish harp will center the table on a carpet of shamrock and candles are being used in the floral decorations. The typical Irish harp is used for nut baskets and there will be other St. Patrick features. The list of guests was not announced until last night and Mrs. George U. Moyle will be among the entertained.

Miss Ellen Hanson, head of the department, will of course have general supervision, but she is requiring her students to assume the responsibility for the planning and execution of the affair.

LOCAL ROTARIANS

AT PASADENA CLUB

The dinner of the Pasadena Rotary club at the Maryland hotel in the city yesterday was attended by representatives from the Glendale club, William Howe of the Glendale theatre, F. Henry of the beverage firm, Henry Brown, and J. M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

According to Mr. Rhoades the meeting was well worth attending as there were prominent men from all parts of the nation who talked on matters of importance to the nation as well as of importance to the Rotary clubs.

"YOURS FOR HEALTH"

Chiropractic is a science as accurate as mathematics. The position of the vertebrae of the spine indicates the source of disease. By skillful adjusting with the hands the pressure on spinal nerve trunks is relieved.
Each organ and function then gets a normal amount of nerve energy as a force, and health results.
Investigation costs nothing and

TUJUNGA NEEDS GOOD SIZED HOTEL

Benefit Entertainments at Tujunga and Sunland
Tonight and Friday

TUJUNGA, March 16.—Tujunga's greatest need at the present time appears to be a hotel to house the many transient visitors who come here daily. There seems to be no reason why such a project should not be started but as yet no one has seen fit to invest. Although there are several homes and small sanitariums in Tujunga where one may obtain room and board there is still room for a good sized hotel.
There have been several interested parties looking into the matter recently and it is only a matter of a short time before the needed accommodations are provided for.

Tomorrow night, March 17, the Sunland Chamber of Commerce will give a benefit entertainment for the Monte Vista home. The show will be given at the home and will consist of vaudeville and dancing from 8 to 12. Refreshments are to be served during the evening.

On next Monday night a meeting of the Asacia club will be held at the Higher Thought college.
Building plans for the proposed Masonic lodge home are now under way. Messrs. Schafer, J. W.
Robbins and H. Moyer are members of the building committee and are preparing plans and cost estimates for the organization.

The Guild of the Church of the Ascension will meet each Wednesday at 10:30 during Lent to work for the Lenten offerings to the missions of Alaska. The meetings conclude at 3 p. m., when services are conducted in the church.

Tonight the first performance of the Chamber of Commerce entertainment, "An Evlin Wid the Irish"
will be given. Tickets are on sale, 25 cents each.

Leo Lang and Mrs. Lang are both sick with influenza. Mrs.
Jud Jenkins and son Charles, are also ill.

A meeting of the Monte Vista post, American Legion, was held on Wednesday night in Bolton hall.
Routine business was transacted.

La Crescenta

LA CRESCENTA, March 16.—
One of the pleasant events of the week for the young people was the reception given by the "Willing Workers" to their friends, at the Community church Wednesday evening. The church was most attractive with spring flowers and St. Patrick's day suggestions. The committee responsible for the success of the affair included Misses Sara and Jessie Conlin, Lorena Czerniski, Janet Culbertson, Elizabeth Jones, Beatrice Volker, Edith Bush and Marion Keith.

Annual Congregational meeting will be held at the Community church next Sunday morning.
There will be election of officers for the ensuing year and the budget of expenses for the year will be discussed.

H. N. Fowler left for Chicago last Sunday. Mrs. Fowler will remain another month. Mr. Fowler is so interested in all local affairs and so enthusiastic about California and La Crescenta that he will be greatly missed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Skulley of Honolulu returned Monday from a month's stay in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Mills of Glendale are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a son, named Mervyn Clifton. Mr. Mills is secretary of the La Crescenta Mutual Water company and has many friends here.

The Howard Grocery company
of Montrose was bought by Chas.
Richard. C. Killian, who has been with the firm for some time, will remain with Mr. Richard.

C. McDaniel, connected with the Los Angeles News company, is moving into his attractive home,
just completed, on Honolulu avenue.

The usual monthly dance of the La Crescenta Woman's club will be given next Saturday at the school auditorium. Fletcher's orchestra of Pasadena will furnish the music.

CHILDREN'S DRESS FACTORY OPENS

Another manufacturing industry has come to Glendale. This is the Phillips' children's dress factory, which is located at 355 West Colorado street. Mrs. Fanny Phillips who has been a resident of this city for several years, is proprietor of this establishment.

Two rooms have been especially equipped for the manufacture of children's dresses of the very latest styles and patterns. The "overhead" of this establishment is not heavy and for this reason this firm expects to be able to produce their output at a very low figure. A full line of ladies' house dresses will be handled and all will be neat and well made.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

WHY NOT?
I like the world, I do indeed,
It has quite all the things I need;
There's always light enough about
By day, when I go walking out,
And what if it is dark at night?
I'm safe in bed and don't need light.
And this, too, makes me like it so;
It's quite the best world that I know.

And I like people, yes I do;
Of all the folks I ever knew
I think I like just people best;
And North and South and East and West,
Spring, Summer, Winter and the Fall,
I like just people best of all.
And this, too, makes me like them so—
They're quite the best folks that I know.

And I like life, because you see,
It's most all that there is to me;
It lets me laugh and work and play
And love and gives me night and day
And flowers and friends and all that's real—Quite every thing I see or feel
Or have or hold or dream or know,
I think that's why I like it so.

The world's my home through thick and thin
That all my friends are people in;
And mine is all the life I've got,
So I like all of them—why not?
And just the same with me and you
Why should we both not like us two,
And rate us always up at par?
We might as well—we're all we are!

BRINKOP USES WIRELESS IN HIS CAMPAIGN

State Treasurer Candidate
Reaches 30,000 in Five Minutes

It's a far call from the days of campaigning with a horse and buggy to using the wireless telephone to further the interests of a

WALTER BRINKOP

political campaign, but this has been accomplished by the live workers in charge of the Walter Brinkop campaign for state treasurer.

Word has just been received at Brinkop headquarters from Frank T. Lanning of San Jose that he has succeeded in reaching over 30,000 citizens of California within the space of five minutes and told them all about Brinkop, his qualifications, his record, both in peace and in war, and the fact that he is receiving the support of prominent bankers and business men
throughout the state in his race
for the office of state treasurer.

"We have had the thought in mind for some time to use the wireless telephone to tell the people of the state about my candidacy," said Brinkop. "But it was not until Mr. Lanning succeeded so successfully that we decided to make the wireless telephone a leading factor in bringing my candidacy regularly before the voters. Mr. Lanning just opened the transmitting apparatus and at once talked to 10,000 homes.
We estimate that at least 30,000
people learned about my record,
my qualifications and the support
I am receiving from men in every walk of life.

"Owing to my connection with the army I have many supporters who, during the war, served with the signal corps, and who today are with some of the big wireless companies. These men are now in charge of my 'wireless campaign' and I believe that their efforts will have much to do with my election."

RADIO DOCTOR IS LATEST MEDICO

Radio Corporations Per-fects Service at Sea
for Sick

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—
No longer will the sick sailor in mid-ocean be pined with pink or white pills of doubtful content from the ship's medicine chest by a first mate who has no knowledge of medicine. At least not on the Pacific.

Through an arrangement between the San Francisco marine hospital, the Seaman's church institute, and the Radio corporation, sailors who are taken ill on the high seas will hereafter be ministered to by wireless. The plan is this:

When a sailor is taken ill, the vessel will send a wireless message telling as near as possible what is the matter with him, what he complains of, his fever, pulse, etc.

The Radio corporation will rush
the message to the Marine hospital where physicians will diagnose the symptoms, prescribe remedies and advise as to treatment.

The prescription will be flashed back to the ship and given to the first mate, who will then be responsible for acting "according to doctor's orders."

No charge will be made for the service.

BURBANK CHORAL CLUB TO APPEAR

BURBANK, March 16.—The next concert of the Burbank Choral club will be given April 4. The program is all planned and every member is doing his bit of the hard work. In addition to the ladies' octet which has appeared at many programs and attained wonderful success, a male quartet has been picked and will contribute to the next program, planned for the pleasure of associate members and all interested in the progress of this musical organization.
